Chamber honors its 'Good Eggs'

volunteer fireman in the Carmel Valley Fire Department where he is currently the captain. His award citation read: "He is one of the brave men who may be called upon any time of the day or night to protect our lives and property." "Good Egg" awards also went to Randy Randazzo, Ron Hunter and Dr. John Von Berg. See page 4. (George T.C. Smith photo)

"A MAN WHOSE civic spirit is among the brightest," stated the award citation for Randy Randazzo. Shown accepting the award from Coakley, Randazzo was credited with helping the Carmel Valley Kiwanis Club as its past president raise over $4,000 for local youth projects. He is currently president of the Carmel Valley Youth Center. Randazzo was also cited for offering free deliveries and errands from his grocery store in Carmel Village to elderly and handicapped persons.

RON HUNTER ACCEPTS his Good Egg award from Rex White, a chamber of commerce charter member. Hunter was honored as a "prime mover" in the Valley for helping volunteer organizations raise money. Instrumental in the Carmel Valley Map Project sponsored by the Kiwanis Club, Hunter has also been co-chairman of the United Fund. "A real gentleman," said his award citation.

UNITARIAN SINGLES GROUP WILL MEET FRIDAY

The Singles Group of the Unitarian Church will meet on Friday at 7:30 p.m. A short talk by Fred Keip entitled The Relaxed Present Singular Tense: Getting Balm Alone or How I Learned to Stop Worrying and Love the Balm will open the meeting. It will be followed by participants dividing into small discussion groups to share ideas about the general topic of being alone without being lonely. After the discussion groups, wine and snacks will be served in a social hour. The meeting will be at the Unitarian Church located on Aguajito Road on Carmel Hill near the junction of Routes 1 and 68 (Holman Highway).

LAS VEGAS HERE WE COME!

I'm sure that's what Vera Stokes was singing when she got on the bus to travel to the tinsel city. Accompanying her was her daughter, Lois Deal; her granddaughter, Donna Wilson, and a family friend, Mary Walls. Vera never travels without some kind of excitement happening. I'd call the bus breaking down twice in the five day trip just a little excitement. They loved touring the casinos and attending two dinner shows. Also, they went through Hoover Dam and then ended with a trip to the ghost town of Calico, Nev. (too bad it wasn't on Halloween, Vera). Vera says the weather was just perfect and even with the bus trouble it didn't dampen these travelers' spirits, for they will be out on the road again very soon.

PAPERBACK BOOKS, PUZZLES AND CRAYONS

That is the beginning of the list of items that the Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula needs from you. They are also asking for any table games, art paper, records, Reader's Digest, *National Geographic*s, holiday decorations and just anything else you might think of that the patients could use. They will be so very grateful. Please let them know you are coming and their doors will be wide open for your disguards.

ITS NICE TO HAVE FRIENDS

I have two very special friends. Your Oak and Cacti girl sent her name in to a San Francisco radio station as part of a contest it is running. My name was called out over the air waves but alas, I wasn't home. Mary Ijams was home and she phoned me and found out I wasn't home, so she phoned the radio station and said she was me. Well, they spun the magic wheel of fortune... "we" didn't win the big prize but "we" did get a tote bag. Another friend, Russ Hatch, was driving home from Sacramento when he, too, heard my name. He drove off the freeway and phoned from a pay phone and got the same results, nobody was home. Russ later apologized for not phoning in as he said his voice wouldn't fool them. I accepted his apology! Two dozen roses to my special friends!

ST. DUNSTAN'S BENEFITS AGAIN

Halloween was the theme of the recent "St. Dunstan's Benefit Bridge and Canasta Gathering." Once a month on the last Wednesday, Kathryn Walker of Flight Road opens her large beautiful home to this group of ladies who play bridge and canasta. Kathryn always presents the loveliest table decorations that also serve as prizes for the day and this party was no exception! Little haystacks made of oats, tiny apples and gourds with autumn leaves surrounding them. There were seven bridge tables and four canasta tables set up by the hostess and her co-hostesses, Fran Wilson and Carlyle Mothersill. Those lucky ladies who won the table prizes were Connie Babin, Millie Grant, June Wilder, Muriel Dawson, Carlyle Mothersill and Lucille Hammel. Helping Kathryn make the prizes were Ann Marshall, Muriel Dawson and Novella Nickelson. First prize for bridge went to Connie Babin. Second prize for bridge went to Irene Selfridge. First prize for canasta went to Nellie Mirani and second went to Vera Stokes. These parties are always open to anyone who enjoys playing bridge and canasta and this party found two new people, Mary Helen Lafferty and Helen Keane. If you would like more information, please phone Kathryn at 659-2280 and she will be happy to invite you to the next party, Jan. 30.

ADORABLE BABY IN TOWN

The first words you hear from mother are, "She looks just like her daddy!" The Stephen Hendricks of El Petro are showing off their first little Hendricks who was born on Oct. 17th at the Community Hospital. She is Casey Elaine and she has auburn hair! Wow! Sharing the parents' joy these days are Casey's maternal grandmother, Mrs. Dorothy Blackman of Sacramento and her paternal grandparents, Mrs. Marjorie Hempill and Mr. Clyde Hendricks, both of Seaside. Welcome to Carmel Valley, Casey!

OUTSTANDING!

The word is being echoed around the Valley and at Carmel High School these days. Henry Avila, music teacher at Carmel High, was recently selected to receive the "MAC Award" as Outstanding Bandmaster in California high schools. Now when you try to count all the high schools in California, it's mind boggling! Henry is tops! Congratulations!

SAGA OF THE CAT

For over two months there has been a visitor in the heater room of the Plaza Linda Restaurant. She had no name, but was loved by the employees who would slip a little cheese, a little milk or whatever out to her. The biggest enjoyment for the employees was the fact that their calico friend was about to give birth. Well, try finding a home for kittens these days and you know the dilemma they faced. But never fear, Will Fay is here! Mother cat has been taken to Will's ranch where she'll have many acres to teach her offspring the ways of the world. Josie Diaz says, "She was the most lovely cat. We will miss her, but she has a good home now."

VALLEYITES WELCOME SON

Edward Samuel Bogart was born to David and Beth Bogart of Carmel Valley on Sept. 30 at the Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula.

The 7-pound, 6-ounce boy is the Bogarts' first child and the first grandchild for paternal grandparents, Capt. (USN) and Mrs. D.S. Bogart of Pebble Beach. Edward is named after his paternal uncle and he takes his middle name from his maternal grandfather.

Formerly residents of Tennessee, the Bogarts moved to Carmel Valley in January because "we liked the area," Beth said. Maternal grandmother Mary Nell Barefield of Tennessee visited with her daughter for a few days to become acquainted with the new grandson.

More mosquitoes than usual invade Carmel area

There are more mosquitoes in the Carmel area this year than usual and this is of concern to the county Health Department. So stated Walter Wong, director of environmental health for Monterey County this week in a telephone interview.

"We've had quite a few complaints," Wong stated, "especially from Carmel Point; but all we can do is check them out."

The problem, according to Wong, is that the county lacks personnel to do follow-up work and an in-depth analysis of the situation.

Before Prop. 13, there was a county-wide vector control officer monitoring the mosquito, fly and rodent populations, with sufficient staff to make routine checks. The vector control position was eliminated in Prop. 13 cutbacks and the county was forced to rely more on the state Health Department.

To compound the problem, however, the state Health Department was cut back 60 percent, which severely restricted its ability to assist the county. For example, state workers did come and pump out a pond near Carmel River Beach, but it has apparently refilled and they are unable to return.

Wong said he is especially concerned about the situation in Carmel Valley, because the animal population is high in that area and mosquitoes are carriers of encephalitis or "sleeping sickness." An epidemic of this often-fatal disease occurred in the Valley about 10 years ago.

"Last year, the Grand Jury recommended restoration of the county vector control person," Wong stated. "However, this has not been done."

Asked what action could be taken to carry out the recommendation, Wong said that he would have to apply for the position again this year. In the meantime, his department does the best it can to respond to the growing number of complaints.

Youth center resumes its drop-in schedule

Chamber Chatter

By JEANELLE KAMINSKE

Secretary, Carmel Valley Chamber of Commerce

CARMEL VALLEY GOES NATIONAL!

Peter Coakley, new president of the Carmel Valley Chamber, has announced that national advertising featuring Carmel Valley will appear this winter in several national magazines, including Time, Sunset and The New Yorker.

25TH ANNIVERSITY INAUGURAL DINNER

This announcement was one of the happy surprises in Coakley's inaugural speech Saturday night at the Carmel Valley Chamber of Commerce 25th Anniversary Dinner at the Rancho Canada Clubhouse. John Tobias, retiring president, presented Coakley a rustic pine gavel made by Dr. Ed Marcucci from his Christmas tree, because the Christmas pine represents the everlasting (strength), evergreen (aliveness), peace and brotherly love of our members. This annual gift from Dr. Marcucci is one of the Chamber traditions that remind us constantly of the great folks in the Valley who really care about each other.

The "Evening of Fun" mood was set by red and blue Creative Balloons (courtesy of Suzy and Jules Pollack) bobbing from chairs, walls and chandeliers, along with red, white and blue streamers.

The Master of Ceremonies, Dr. Ed Marcucci and Lou Allaire, kept the mood informal and the crowd chuckling with the usual digs and underhanded accolades toward the various members.

Congressman Leon Panetta and his lovely wife, Sylvia, laughed hardest at the Italian jokes, and Monterey County Planning Commissioner Bill Peters was having such a good time that he told a very funny political joke—on himself.

Other guests included Sheriff Bud Cook and his vivacious wife, Joyce, Mr. and Mrs. Kevin la Graff (assistant to Henry Mello), Mr. and Mrs. Burke Pease (executive director of the Monterey Peninsula Chamber of Commerce), the Thomas Coakley family (parents, brother and sister of the new president. They came from Colorado, Walnut Creek and Mariposa to surprise Coakley). And Sherrie Coakley's mother, Charlotte Nash from Priest Lake, Idaho.

Lou Gardner led the crowd in reciting the Chamber motto and Lou Allaire stopped "hamming it up" momentarily when he introduced Rex White (Prince's Camp), pointing out that Rex, one of the Chamber's charter members, served as president for two terms.

GOOD EGG AWARDS

After the new directors and officers were introduced, the highlight of the evening started—Rex White presented the "Good Egg Awards" to four outstanding (and very surprised) citizens in the Valley who were chosen by former "Good Eggs" due to their extra efforts and work during the years in special community and individual efforts.

The first recipient was Pete Garneau, a native son who began doing good turns for Carmel Valley over 20 years ago, starting with Boy Scout Troop 127. As a member of the Carmel Valley Volunteer Fire Department, he has taken many special training sessions to work his way up to the rank of captain. These volunteers spend many hours in service to the community, may be called upon any time day or night to leave homes and businesses to protect us without any compensation for time lost from work.

Garneau has also given extra time to the Tularcitos School Parents Club on many projects and serves as vice president to the Carmel Valley Youth Center. It's men like this that make this area a wonderful place to live.

The next "Good Egg" was presented to Ron Hunter, who

THE THIRD GOOD EGG award went to a "most industrious and dedicated volunteer worker," Dr. John Von Berg. Supporter of the local Boy Scout Troop 127, the Hidden Valley Music Seminars and Kiwanis Club, Von Berg is also a member of the board of directors of the Carmel Valley Youth Center. He was also cited for his "many days of time" donated to the Hospice. (George T.C. Smith photos) has probably assisted every organization in the Valley in public relations and fund-raising events. As a prime mover in the Carmel Valley Kiwanis map project, Hunter also assisted the club in earning $3,000 last year for youth activities in the Valley. As co-chairman of the United Fund, he helped Carmel Valley surpass several neighboring incorporated areas in donations.

The third recipient, Dr. John Von Berg, was cited as our most industrious and dedicated worker. He has given many days in building the Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula and helping with its fund-raising sales. He is active in every phase of the Boy Scout Troop 127. Dr. Von Berg is a strong supporter of Hidden Valley Music Seminars, assisting it with fund-raising projects and work programs.

With all this he had time to serve on the board of directors of the Carmel Valley Youth Center and carry a very large part of the work as chairman of the Chamber's "Silent Auctions."

When Dr. John Von Berg's hands aren't working on somebody's teeth, they're always busy working somewhere for Carmel Valley. He says, "For once you've given an Egg to someone who looks like an egg." On the contrary, John, you look a lot like one of our typical Valley greats, whose shoulders we have to touch occasionally to see if they're hiding wings.

And one of our greatest guys works in a quiet, unobtrusive manner. Randy Randazzo's civic spirit is among the brightest. He's working as president of the Youth Center to obtain land next door to the center for park and playground. As president of the Carmel Valley Kiwanis Club he led that organization in raising over $4,000 in the support of local youth projects. He's responsible for placing six flagpoles in the Village area. He's a member of the Village Improvement Committee which was successful in getting a commitment for the undergrounding of utility lines.

Randazzo has a special talent for responding to those in need. While delivering groceries, he has helped the elderly and handicapped with special errands. No one knows how many boxes of groceries are given to those who have needed help. When handed his Egg, Randy very convincingly replied, "It's very hard to say thanks with a lump in your throat."

A plea for "trees' rights"

By JERRY FOOTE

EVERYONE SEEMS TO have rights these days. They are claimed and defended vigorously with parades, demonstrations, sit-ins, lobbies, violence and non-violence.

Amid all of the din and confusion, a group of living things in our community stands silent, unable to contribute to causes or to take a single step in their own defense. This article is a plea for "trees' rights."

It is so easy to take trees for granted, to use and to abuse them, and to forget the debt we owe them. But the years ahead are going to bring a lot of development and many more people to our valley, and during that time our trees should be protected, cherished, and attended by knowledgeable owners and tree men. Otherwise, we stand to lose many of the beautiful giants with whom we share the Valley.

IMAGINE A VALLEY OAK, its roots going 75 feet down into the earth, the canopy of its branches many yards wide. The tree has survived fire, drought, insects, diseases and storms; it has developed into a marvel of engineering and chemistry with its ability to lift water a hundred feet in the air, and with leaves that are natural factories for photosynthesis.

Through thousands of years, its kind has adapted to the annual cycle of dry and wet seasons; it is in perfect harmony with its surroundings. And what happens to this living miracle? Man arrives, the greatest danger the tree will ever know.

HERE ARE SOME OF the things I have seen done to our trees: burning by arson or power lines; constant watering of natives in order to maintain a lawn under them; fill dirt piled against them during construction of a house—sometimes as much of 10 feet of fill; paving around them, interrupting the natural absorption of rainfall; gashes caused by bulldozers and tractors; neglect of subsequent injuries and disease. What are we doing?

Usually such acts are the work of ignorant or uncaring people who should be educated in the proper nurture of their assets, for trees certainly are assets to any property.

Real estate salesmen will tell you that each tree on a piece of property adds a certain number of dollars to the value of the place. According to a formula adopted in the state of Washington, a tree has a monetary value of $9 per square inch of the cross section at 4½-feet above grade. The formula appears in something called the Landscape Destruction Value Doctrine, which estimates actual dollar costs of environmental changes caused by development.

HERE ARE SOME OF the many positive functions of a living tree which are considered in making a value determination.

- The benefit to animals and man of the food and by-products.
- Control of noise. (A good example of this is the fine stand of trees planted on the west side of the Laureles Grade Road just above the Valley road. There the trees give the occupants privacy, quiet and protection against the noise and fumes of traffic.)
- Purification of our air, by taking the carbon dioxide which we expel, combining it with water to produce food, then giving off oxygen, which is necessary to all life.
- Insulation of our homes from high temperatures and high winds.
- Stabilization of the earth with large root systems, thus preventing erosion.

Trees are valuable partners with man in the enterprise of living on this planet. When a tree is destroyed, whether from injury, disease, or man's necessity, it is my conviction that two trees should be planted in its place. And not just any two—quality as well as quantity is important. Two fast growing acacias or pines do not equal one oak.

It is a temptation to plant a tree which will grow to full size within a few years, and there is little harm in succumbing. But I would put in a plea for the tree planted for our children and grandchildren, the tree we will never live to see in its mature beauty. That is an act of faith if there ever was one.

NATURE HAS A FAITH greater than ours. She goes about her business of planting with enthusiasm, although the odds are against many of the trees ever reaching maturity.

Each spring, before the pasture is mowed, we walk through it with stakes and sheep fencing and mark the young oak seedlings which have appeared on their own recognizance. This saves them from the mower and gives a promise of replacement of the older trees on our mesa. We shall not see them in their prime, but they are there in our minds. And if ghosts have haunting privileges in the hereafter, I plan to concentrate on any one who cuts those trees down.

There is a beautiful Prayer of the Trees which comes to us anonymously from the Portuguese. As you read this eloquent plea for the rights of trees, it may change your way of thinking for ever after.

"Ye who pass by and would raise your hand against me, harken ere you harm me.

I am the heat of your hearth on the cold winter nights, the friendly shade screening you from the summer sun, and my fruits are refreshing draughts, quenching your thirst as you journey on.

I am the beam that holds your house, the board of your table, the bed on which you lie, and the timber that builds your boat.

I am the handle of your hoe, the door of your homestead, the wood of your cradle, and the shell of your coffin.

I am the bread of kindness and the flower of beauty.

Ye who pass by, listen to my prayer; harm me not."

Christianna Cordrey marries Robert Taylor

St. Dunstan's Episcopal Church in Carmel Valley was the setting for the marriage of Christianna Marie Cordrey to Robert Farley Taylor on Saturday, Oct. 20, during an afternoon ceremony. The Rev. James Brock officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Vernon Gregory of Carmel Valley and the late Phil Cordrey. A 1975 graduate of York School, Christianna now attends Diablo Valley College where she studies theater arts.

The groom is the son of Mrs. Janet Zeller of Columbus, Ohio, and Robert Taylor of Rawley, N.C. A 1975 graduate of Lancaster High School in Ohio, he has attended Ohio University in Lancaster and currently attends Diablo Valley College where he, too, studies theater arts. He is also assistant manager of Walnut Creek nursery.

The maid of honor was Kelly Camezon of Pasadena. Bridesmaids were Jeni Rose of Pleasant Hill and Tracy Anastasia of Carmel Valley.

Michael Sink of Moraga served as the groom's best man. Ushers were Byron Rooker of Walnut Creek and Douglas Cunningham of Lafayette.

Following the ceremony, 100 guests attended a reception at the home of the bride's mother where they enjoyed champagne, hors d'oeuvres and wedding cake.

Among the special guests were the bride's brother, Chet Cordrey, who gave the bride away, and the groom's mother, visiting from Columbus. The bride is the granddaughter of long-time residents Mrs. Dudley Sanford and Mr. Byington Ford.

Instead of a honeymoon, the newlyweds returned to Diablo College where they are performing in a production of Gypsy.

Carmelo I remains undefeated in Carmel Youth Soccer league

Unbeaten Carmelo I kept its record untarnished by defeating Carmelo II, 4-1 in a Junior League match of the Carmel Youth Soccer on Oct. 23. Carmelo II had been unbeaten, too, going into the match.

Scoring for Carmelo I were Bobby Carroll with three goals and Jim Courtney. Scoring the lone goal for Carmelo II was Chris Callahan.

Tuesday, Oct. 23, featured an inter-school match between Woods School and River III. River III emerged victorious behind the four-goal scoring of Michael Cox. Scoring the lone goal for Woods was Jeff LeTowt.

The Thursday, Oct. 25, match between Tularcitos I and Tularcitos II, and the match between River I and River II were cancelled because of heavy morning rains.

On Saturday, Oct. 27, the four Valley teams and the four city teams met at Carmel Middle School for inter-school competition.

Tularcitos I loaned short-handed Woods a couple of its players and Woods used them to good advantage as it downed Tularcitos I, 4-1. Scoring for Woods were Brett Ledbetter, who had two goals, Jeff Alexander and Kurt Shakal. Paul Haste scored the lone goal for Tularcitos I.

Tularcitos II narrowly defeated River III, 2-1. David Stainbrook scored twice for Tularcitos II and Michael Cox scored for River III.

Undefeated Carmelo I had to rally to tie River II, 2-2. Scoring all the goals for Carmelo I was Bobby Carroll. Steven Fearn scored both goals for River II.

Carmelo II defeated River I, 3-1, to give the Valley teams the edge in victories this week. Scoring for Carmelo II were Nick Trudeau, Chris Gallahan and Damon Maggiore. Scoring River I's only goal was Brian Crummey.

Operation conditions satisfy opponents

Tantamount Theater permit wins final approval

By STEVE HELLMAN

THE ANTAGONISM THAT had stalled the rebuilding of the Tantamount Theater was soothed last week as a final decision was reached on the use permit for the once-popular Carmel Valley landmark.

The Monterey County Board of Supervisors voted 4-1 to approve a use permit that will allow owner Francois Martin and his business manager Rene Sonne to reconstruct the 144-seat theater on Middle Canyon Road. A fire last year destroyed the theater after Martin had operated it for more than 20 years as a "labor of love."

The supervisors decided not to revise the conditions that were attached to the use permit by the planning commission. The conditions restricted the operation to Friday-Sunday nights, with 15 days set aside for additional Thursday performances. A maximum of 156 days of operation per year will be allowed for movies and live performances. This will not include rehearsals.

MARTHA COOPER LANG, the leading oponent and an immediate neighbor on Middle Canyon Road, said after the meeting that she would not file a lawsuit to halt the reconstruction.

Although she had initially sought to halt the use permit before the planning commission, then later pushed to limit the operation to Friday and Saturday nights only, Lang conceded that three nights per week was a fair compromise.

"I feel fine about it," she said of the supervisors' decision. "We didn't want the theater to operate any more than it had and I think we broke even on that point."

"The theater without Francois was our main fear," she said.

It was an unspoken but recognized concern throughout the hearings that Martin's failing health has forced him to play a less active role since 1975. Coupled with this was an underlying suspicion about Sonne's motives for leading the effort to rebuild the theater.

But Lang appeared satisfied that the conditions on the use permit will adequately restrict any new operator.

The concern among the opponents had been that the former low-key Tantamount could be turned into a busy commercial venture.

SUPERVISOR SAM FARR, however, pointed out that the use permit held restrictions, but did not preclude someone from turning the Tantamount into a profitable operation. Reluctant to allow the reconstruction, he said, "I've gotten a lot of phone calls on this. When we issue this use permit, you (Sonne) walk out of here with a marketable commodity."

"It could become a commercial venture like no one ever believed," Farr said. But he added that the restrictions were clear concerning the days of operation.

Voting to approve the use permit, Farr added that the "law was clear" on the right to rebuild the theater.

DESPITE ITS STATUS As a legal non-conforming use, the County Counsel's office determined that the Tantamount

MARTHA COOPER LANG was smiling last week at the hearing of the Board of Supervisors concerning the Tantamount Theater. Mrs. Lang set aside her previous opposition to the reconstruction of the theater. She accepted the supervisors' decision to grant a use permit that will restrict the theater to performances on three nights per week. Mrs. Lang said that she would not file a lawsuit. (Steve Hellman photo) could be rebuilt because less than 75 percent of the assessed value of the property was lost in the fire.

Lang's attorney, Nick Kraushaar of Salinas, argued at a previous hearing Oct. 16 that the county erred in not assessing the theater as a total loss. He said it should not have included Martin's adjoining residence in the assessment of the damage to the non-conforming use.

At the Oct. 16 meeting, the supervisors accepted the County Counsel's interpretation, but in an effort to compromise ordered Sonne to produce theater records showing that the theater operated three nights per week before the fire. Otherwise, the supervisors were inclined to heed the opponents' arguments and limit the use permit to only Friday and Saturday operation.

Sonne failed to supply thorough evidence at the Oct. 30 meeting to support Sunday showings. But in an ironic twist, the opponents presented a tally of performances through the years since 1960. Taken from the entertainment pages of the local newspapers, the tally showed that the theater operated on Friday and Saturday nights up until 1975. It revealed that in 1976 movies were shown regularly on Sundays.

BECAUSE EXPANSION OF a non-conforming use is illegal, the neighbors would have had an argument in 1976 when the Sunday movies started, according to county zoning administrator Bob Slimmon.

But as Slimmon noted, "The neighbors lived for years with the operation, including the increase to Sundays in 1976. It (Sunday shows) went on for three years without us knowing about it. There were no complaints from the neighbors of which we were aware."

Kraushaar argued that according to the tally the most performances for any one year had been 150 in 1977. He said that the county was allowing more use if it approved 156 nights per year.

Sonne's attorney, Melvin Steiner of Carmel, said that the tally did not take into account the charity performances and private benefits that did not appear in the entertainment ads.

There were as many as 24 live performances per year in the 1960s, Steiner noted. Because of Martin's health, the performances were cut back in the 1970s.

Of the added Sunday shows after 1975, he said, "The neighbors were totally aware of the use and never objected."

SUPERVISOR BARBARA Shipnuck said that her decision to support the three nights per week weighed heavily on the fact that neighbors did not complain after the use increased in 1976.

One neighbor, however, who asked not to be identified, told this reporter that most of the neighborhood felt it would not be kind to complain when Martin had just suffered a succession of strokes and a heart attack in 1975.

Supervisor Dusan Petrovic cast the lone dissenting vote. He argued that the use permit was not proper unless the county based it on the extent of the theater's use in 1958 when it technically became a legal non-conforming use.

Fine points of the law, however, gave way to the overriding feeling, as Farr put it, that "no one should be able to take advantage of the fire."

Following the decision, Martin said, "I have my puppeteers trained and we'll be ready to produce shows as soon as the theater is rebuilt."

Sonne said that the reconstruction time would depend on financing. He said he hoped the resentment among the neighbors was a thing of the past. If not, he said, he might consider relocating the theater.

The time has come, as they say in show business, to let the show go on.

Reclamation plan suffers setbacks

By STEVE HELLMAN

WITHIN THE SPAN of a week the Carmel Sanitary District has suffered two setbacks in its effort to advance its areawide reclamation project.

Neighboring Pebble Beach Sanitary District (PBSD) abruptly announced Oct. 18 that it was backing out of the $13.7 million project.

Monterey Peninsula Country Club is not interested in joining the project as a user of reclaimed wastewater, according to an announcement Oct. 25.

PBSD withdrawal meant an immediate loss of $34,375 to the project. The amount was PBSD's share of cost for the design phase. The country club's 36-hole golf course promised to be a major disposal source for the implementation phase.

ALTHOUGH NEITHER action halts the project, a heavier burden has been placed on the Carmel Sanitary District because it is the local lead agency.

The sanitary district is currently negotiating agreements with local golf course owners for the use of highly treated wastewater to irrigate the golf courses.

The project is scheduled for completion in 1983, the deadline the sanitary district has been given by the state to halt its summertime disposal of effluent into Carmel Bay.

The announcement of the PBSD withdrawal came at a particularly sensitive time. The State Water Resources Control Board was just about to sign its final approval for a $137,000 grant for the design phase.

"There was some concern from state officials about the Pebble Beach action," said Michael Zambory, manager of the Carmel Sanitary District.

Zambory said the PBSD was wrong to unilaterally pull out of the project since it has a contract to discharge its effluent through the main treatment plant of the Carmel Sanitary District.

"They (PBSD) have tied up one-third of the capacity of our plant," Zambory said. "They just can't arbitrarily beg out on the reclamation project."

PBSD HAD PARTICIPATED in the planning phase of the reclamation project (Step I of the Areawide Facilities Plan). But at the Oct. 18 meeting of the board of directors of the Carmel Sanitary District, PBSD manager Richard Lord said that his district wanted nothing to do with Step II. Step II of the Areawide Facilities Plan is the design of the reclamation project.

Lord gave no explanation for the decision. When Zambory requested it in writing, Lord said his board of directors would vote on a resolution to cement the withdrawal.

The next day, Oct. 19, the Carmel Sanitary District received notice from the State Water Resources Control Board that the Step II grant had been approved. The $137,000 grant, however, is provided on the basis that local agencies will provide matching funds.

Monterey County, PBSD and the Carmel Sanitary District had shared the local agency costs in the Step I planning phase. The county, however, had indicated from the start that it would drop out after Step I.

At its meeting Oct. 25, the PBSD board of directors unanimously approved its resolution to withdraw. The Carmel Sanitary District was left holding the bag for Step II.

ZAMBORY SAID THAT PBSD may still be required to pay its share of the local cost, depending on further negotiations between the two sanitary districts and the county. But for the time being, the Carmel Sanitary District will have to foot the full $137,000 cost to match the state grant.

"Despite their (PBSD) attitude," Zambory said, "we're going ahead with the project."

It was at a special Oct. 25 study session of Teachers, parents protest cuts in foreign language

By STEVE HELLMAN

ONE IN 10 PERSONS in the United States knows a foreign tongue, while nationally only 15 percent of high school students study a foreign language. These points were made by Allan Oppenhuizen, foreign language teacher at Carmel High School, in a presentation last week to the board of education of the Carmel Unified School District. Oppenhuizen was joined by a parade of parents who decried the cuts made this year in French, Spanish and German classes at Carmel Middle School. The trustees took no action, however, because the presentation was an information item and not scheduled for board action. It was one of a series of status reports that are being presented to the trustees by each department in the district. District Superintendent Dr. Carl Wilsey explained that the cuts resulted from the reduction to a five period day at Middle School. "Middle School was hit hardest by the budget cuts that have resulted from Proposition 13," he said. "We're trying to move back a six period day. We have the options to build it back next year."

BUD CHAPPLE, CHAIRMAN of the language department since 1965, echoed Wilsey's explanation, saying, "It was tough to fill schedules with only five periods." But Barbara Sanford, a veteran board watcher and candidate for the school board in Tuesday's election said that the Middle School program should not have been cut to five periods. She noted that it required only about $13,000 to restore six periods at the high school. Sanford said that the language program could have been spared if the trustees had sought to preserve six periods at the same expense for Middle School.

GERMAN WAS DROPPED completely from the sixth and seventh grade curriculum at Middle School, language teacher Shelley Titcomb said. French and Spanish were offered only on an every-other-day basis, alternating with physical education, she added. Next year, Titcomb warned, German will be dropped from the eighth grade unless "the school board realizes the necessity of reinstating a strong foreign language program. "Students learn languages best at younger ages. But now they can't take German until high school," Titcomb said.

OPPENHUIZEN, CHAIRMAN of the foreign language program at Carmel High School, said that the cuts had forced teachers to combine classes and had seriously hampered the "trimester" experiment. The trimester program was introduced at the Middle School in 1975, Oppenhuizen said, to allow sixth grade students to select the language they wanted to study. The students were taught German, French and Spanish for 12 weeks each within one semester, then were allowed to select one for a permanent subject. The elimination of German, he said, forced mixed classes at the high school with beginning and advanced students. "From a professional standpoint, it is not satisfactory. You end up devoting all your time to the beginners and the advanced are left to themselves," Oppenhuizen said. The cuts at Middle School affected a language program at the high school that is already under "tremendous tension," according to Oppenhuizen. "We're neither fish nor fowl. We're not required for graduation, but we're required for entry into the universities," he told the trustees. Because language classes are a "strenuous discipline," Oppenhuizen said students drop them first when the study load becomes heavy in other classes. He said that by the second semester in his French and German classes, English is banned for classroom communication.

THE BACKDROP TO this, Oppenhuizen said, is that United States citizens are woefully lacking in other languages. It showed, for example, when United States businessmen tried to establish trade relations with China earlier this year and fell short on several accounts because of a lack of communication. He noted, also, the embarrassment President Carter suffered when his translator "let him down in Poland." He told the trustees that a solution was urgently needed to restore the sixth grade language curriculum. He said a report would be prepared and presented to the trustees

ALLEN OPPENHUIZEN, foreign language teacher at Carmel High School, gave an impassioned plea last week for support for the French, German and Spanish classes. In a status report to the board of education, Oppenhuizen decried cuts in the language curriculum at Carmel Middle School. "It further deepens our lack of expertise in understanding foreign cultures," he said. (Steve Hellman photo) sometime this semester. IN THE CARMEL school district, about 50 percent of the students have consistently enrolled in the language program, according to figures presented by Wilsey. But this year the enrollment dropped to 47 percent, partly because of the elimination of a volunteer Latin course. Oppenhuizen credited language study with opening many doors to other cultures in the world. Titcomb explained that foreign language study offers a student a better knowledge of the world, practical skills that can be carried over into other fields of work, and a better understanding of our own vocabulary and grammar. She also noted that foreign language was rated the most popular study last year at both Middle School and Carmel High School. She said that students had been particularly happy with the trimester program.

"I WANT MY KID to get exercise and learn a foreign language, said Patricia Bernardi, a parent of a sixth grader. "But sharing P.E. with language cheats both programs." Debbie O'Neill, who noted she and her husband are multi-lingual, said that they were excited when they moved here from the East Coast and found languages offered to their child in Middle School. "We were sorely disappointed when this program was chosen for cuts," she said. Dick Radowicz said that the most frequent complaint he has heard as a parent was that the language program was being offered on alternative days, or only three hours per week.

TITCOMB NOTED THAT students cannot retain language study unless it is applied constantly without such breaks. The bottom line to the issue, said Dorothy Crivello, who has a child at Middle School, is to return to six periods. Lou Langley agreed with Crivello. Parents are tired of "having to settle for mediocrity in education," she said. "We're very distressed and we want the board to know it should re-evaluated where we're going with our education program," Langley said. Her comment drew loud applause.

Scoring goals for the first game for Team No. 4 were Brett Rozell and Christian Juhring. Team No. 4 won the second game by the score of 3-0, with Hoff Brooks, Peter Aylain and Paul Wirtz providing the goals. In the second game played Wednesday, Oct. 24, Team No. 1 completed a two-game sweep by again defeating Team No. 2, 5-2. Carlos Zarate scored two goals and Reed Keel tallied three goals. Scoring in team No. 2 were Mike Allard and John Gibbons. In the first game, played Monday, Oct. 22, Team No. 1 defeated Team No. 2, 6-2. Revised CV Master Plan adoption on the horizon?

WILL THE REVISED Carmel Valley Master Plan be ready for implementation by the dawn of the new decade?

Or will the debate that has surrounded the revision since its inception 2½ years ago drag on into 1980?

The Monterey County Planning Commission approved the Master Plan revision at its meeting Oct. 24, but critics say the plan is still fraught with major problems.

One critic, Carl Hooper of Bestor Engineers, contends that the county planners heard only a fraction of public comment on the proposed Master Plan, although it was discussed in detail at five separate planning commission meetings this summer.

Hooper claims that there is not a chance that the Board of Supervisors can approve the plan before March 1980. He said last week that there are too many problems and too little comment in the wake of the plan's approval by the planning commission.

But Supervisor Sam Farr of Carmel said there is "very little" in the plan the board can discuss. He said it was thoroughly examined by the planning commission.

Supervisors will probably schedule the Master Plan for a public hearing on Nov. 27, and there is nothing to stop the board from approving it by 1980, Farr declared in rebuttal to Hooper's comments.

THIS SPARRING MATCH between Farr and Hooper was sparked at a meeting Oct. 30 during the discussion of the moratorium on new development in Carmel Valley. The supervisors unanimously approved an eight-month extension to July 3, 1980, of the emergency ordinance. It is intended to remain in effect until the Master Plan is adopted, at which time the ordinance will be repealed.

The interim ordinance was first enacted last July as part of an agreement to have a lawsuit dropped by the city of Carmel, the Carmel Area Coalition and Mary Ann of Mission Fields. The lawsuit charged that the county General Plan was inadequate for land use decisions.

The purpose of the moratorium, which would have expired Nov. 3, was to protect the area in Carmel Valley that will be under the jurisdiction of the Master Plan.

THE SUPERVISORS HEARD requests last week that specific parcels of land be excluded from the interim ordinance.

Charles Page, a Monterey attorney, asked that four parcels in the Aguajito area be withdrawn not only from the moratorium ordinance, but also from the Master Plan study area.

Hooper, representing Danny Garcia, who wants to subdivide 11 acres into 10 lots in the Rancho Mar Monte subdivision, asked that his parcel be excluded. Hooper also asked that the proposed 1,300-acre Vista Nadura subdivision be withdrawn.

The supervisors refused to grant the requests, noting that it was not the proper time and place to discuss amendments to the Master Plan.

A flat denial was given to Hooper on Vista Nadura because the large project is in the center of the Master Plan study area.

The matter of excluding the Aguajito area, however, was scheduled for further hearing on Nov. 20 at 1:30 p.m. At that time the supervisors will only consider whether the area should be excluded from the moratorium.

The Aguajito area is located at the extreme northwest corner of the Master Plan study area, bordered by the northern ridgeline of the Valley, Jacks' Peak Regional Park to the east, Highway 1 to the west and Canada de la Segunda Ranch to the south. As it relates to the Master Plan study area, Aguajito will be discussed only at the public hearings scheduled for the Master Plan, the supervisors agreed.

SENIOR COUNTY PLANNER Dave Young said that the Master Plan revision was on the supervisors' consent calendar for Nov. 6, and that the planning department recommended it be scheduled for a public hearing on Nov. 27.

"We know they (the supervisors) are in a rush for it," Young said. "They could have set it earlier, on the 20th."

He would not predict whether the supervisors will hold more than one hearing, although he said, "you can't say it (the Master Plan revision) hasn't had ample review and comment."

Young conceded, however, that "some heavy-duty issues" are still in the plan over which the board may be fundamentally divided.

If the supervisors decide changes are necessary, the plan would have to be referred back to the planning commission for comment, forcing a delay that could conceivably stretch into next year, Young said.

"I don't see how it possibly could be approved before the first of the year," Hooper said. He estimated that the revision would be scheduled for a hearing on Dec. 4 at the earliest.

Hooper said, "It (the plan) can't possibly be approved in a single sitting of the board." Noting that the board has only three meetings in December, he said, "This means it will run over into January."

"There are still many controversial things in it—the quota and point system is a totally new procedure; it will warrant a lot of discussion and some changes," Hooper claimed.

The proposed quota and point system would require

Sanitary district reclamation plan suffers setbacks

the directors of the Carmel Sanitary District that Zambory announced that the Monterey Peninsula Country Club was not interested in signing an agreement to use treated wastewater.

"They're opposed to the very thought of using wastewater," Zambory said. "It's not going to kill the project. But it's hurting us. We're hoping they'll come back for an agreement."

ZAMBORY WAS INFORMED of the country club's refusal at a meeting in September of the PBSB board of directors. Several of the PBSB directors are members of the country club. Since then, evidence has emerged that it was one director who was involved in both decisions against the reclamation project.

Elmer Shriner, chairman of the PBSB board of directors, is a current member of the country club and its former treasurer and secretary.

Asked last week if he was involved in the position taken by the country club against the project, Shriner told this reporter: "They asked my opinion and I gave them my thoughts."

What about PBSB's decision to withdraw? "That was a board decision, not just mine," he said.

"We participated in Step I of the Areawide Facilities Plan," Shriner said. "We participated in the improvements on Carmel's new secondary treatment plant in 1971. But the reclamation project was dreamed up by the Carmel Sanitary District. We were never involved in it."

Zambory said, "We understand where Pebble Beach is coming from. They're against the reclamation project because they oppose the ASBS."

THE STATE WATER Resources Control Board designated the ASBS (Area of Special Biological Significance) for Carmel Bay in 1975. The ASBS led to a restriction on the amount of effluent that could be discharged into Carmel Bay. This resulted in — among other things — the ban on annexations within the Carmel Sanitary District. It also resulted in restrictions on the amount of effluent that could be discharged from Pebble Beach area. It also led to an order from the state that summertime disposal from the main treatment plant be halted by 1983.

The ASBS was designated to prevent potential damage to marine life in Carmel Bay from an ever-increasing amount of effluent. The $13.7 million reclamation project was chosen as the alternative to dumping effluent into the bay.

Zambory decried the stand taken by PBSB, saying: "They have got their heads stuck in the sand."

The local golf courses, PBSB and the entire Monterey Peninsula and Carmel Valley will benefit from the reclamation project, Zambory said, because:

- It will protect Carmel Bay against the potential damage from effluent discharge.
- It will provide a stable source of good water for the local golf courses.
- It will make more potable water available to residents.

ZAMBORY SAID THAT the Carmel Sanitary District has received letters of intention to enter into an agreement for wastewater from the following golf courses: Rancho Canada, Cypress Point, Pebble Beach Corporation (which controls Spyglass Hill), and the Northern California Golf Association, which is building two additional golf courses in the Del Monte Forest.

Zambory said that the PBSB decision was also ill-conceived because the federal government is prepared to "pick up the tab for 87 percent of this project."

He referred to the grants that are administered through the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). In early October the EPA approved an $875,000 grant for the design phase of the project. Whether or not the reclamation project is completed, the design phase will include important construction such as improvements to equipment at the treatment plant, Zambory said. Ultimately, the EPA is expected to provide about $10 million of the $13.7 million cost for the reclamation project.

MIDDLE SCHOOL student Lorelei Kalinowski is either happy or startled. Perhaps she caught a glimpse of herself in the camera lens.

STRANGE BUT FRIENDLY faces give us a bit of Halloween cheer. Attendance was high at Middle School on Halloween. Nobody wanted to miss seeing all the strange costumes, but we wonder after all the evening treats were eaten, how many upset stomachs kept students home from school the next day. Debbie Cormalis (left) and Shelly Stevens stand in front of Steve St. Germaine.

SPORTING THAT long, longer, longest eyelash look that's so much in vogue with cosmetic firms, Joanne Wirtz peers out from those Maybelline eyes.

ANN SACKMAN (left) and Jill Mink are masking their real identities. Supposedly, the students' masks are duplicate images of two of the girls' teachers. We had to withhold the teachers' names to protect the grades of the guilty.

Halloween...a day when strange characters are seen around schools

CONTRARY TO WHAT this photograph may suggest, the students at Carmel Middle School are not getting homelier, but they may be getting weirder. When the ghoulish foursome in front convened for a photo, a herd of unnamed boys

ALL THE STUDENTS seemed to be having the time of their lives while they watched an anonymous Middle School student clock in for Halloween. (Punsters are without pride or self-control.)

developments to compete for approval. Total development would be held to a maximum of 2,500 new units during the plan's life, which is 20 years or until the year 2000. Individual developments would be further limited to only 25 new units per year.

BECAUSE CHANGES proposed by the supervisors in this or other parts of the plan would bring it back to the planning commission for comment, Hooper said that the new Master Plan will not be in shape for adoption until next March.

Farr said, "I think we've beaten the thing to death. The compromises have been made. A lot of people who you wouldn't expect are going to support its adoption."

Hooper represents a minority viewpoint, according to Farr. Farr said, "These people have chipped away at the plan, and the planning commission heard their comments. There's very little that the board can do but approve it."

Hooper's final comment was that the planning commission repeatedly cut off his presentation, and he would be certain to get in his "piece" at the supervisors' hearing.

AGUAJITO DESERVES to be deleted from both the interim ordinance and the Master Plan study area, according to Page, because it belongs in the planning area for Monterey. Its school and traffic needs are served from outside Carmel Valley, he said, noting that the access to Aguajito is either from Carpenter Street or Aguajito Road, both off Highway 1.

"I was shocked to find the planning line included this area in the proposed Master Plan. The property would be zoned for five-acre minimum, while there is no major residential area in Carmel Valley with that zoning," Page said. "It is the duty of this board to correct this."

Page explained that he had applied for a lot-split on 10 acres in order to build a home for his family on five acres. But he was prevented from filing an application for a minor subdivision because of the moratorium.

Unless his property was excluded, it would force him into further delays, he said. "Thinking that the Master Plan is going to be adopted within less than several months is fantasy," Page said.

CARMEL CITY ATTORNEY George Brehmer said that the city was not aware of any request to modify the area covered by the moratorium. He said any consideration from the board would have to be based on the primary factor that the Aguajito area is within the ridgeline and viewshed of Carmel Valley.

"You have the feeling you're in a rural valley as long as you can look up and see the mountain joining the sky; it's a natural union," Brehmer said. He urged that the boundary not be changed because it could lead to development along the ridge.

Attorney Phillip Oberg, representing the Carmel Area Coalition, concurred with Brehmer's stand. He said that an amendment to the interim ordinance was not "consonant" with the instructions that were agreed upon when the lawsuit was dropped.

According to Deputy County Counsel Jose Ramos, there is justification for deleting the Aguajito area because of three factors:

- It is a small area in comparison to the 30,000 acres covered by the Master Plan.
- Development of the area would not prejudice planning goals.
- Deleting it would conform to reasonable planning.

Ramos emphasized, however, that the land could not be deleted simply to accommodate the landowner.

COUNTY ZONING ADMINISTRATOR Bob Slimmon noted that since work began on the Master Plan revision, landowners had requested that Aguajito be left out.

But Farr said that the rationale for including it in the Master Plan was based on its location within the viewshed of the Valley. He added that it was the opinion of both the county planning director and public works director that the subdivisions along Outlook Drive and in High Meadow within Aguajito "are the ones that got away from us" in terms of sound planning.

"This is a sensitive area that should be included within the Master Plan," Farr said.

Junipero Serra School students will no longer have to pay a two-zone fare to ride the Monterey Peninsula Transit bus into Carmel Valley. The cost will be 35 cents instead of the previous 70 cents.

The relief was accomplished by expanding the boundary of the Carmel Valley zone to include the school.

Monday by the board of directors of the transit company. It came at the request of parents who did not want their children crossing Highway 1 to catch the bus in front of Brinton's where the fare is for one zone into the Valley.

The directors, however, denied a request to either move the Valley zone to include Carmel High School or provide discount tickets to the high school students. Because they are a quarter-mile outside the zone, the students have to pay 70 cents or walk along Highway 1 to Brinton's.

Tom Albert, manager of the transit company, had indicated that expanding the boundary to include the high school or providing discounts to students would force significant losses in the company's revenue.

The possible alternatives discussed by the directors included selling tickets to the school district which would re-sell them to the students at a lower price. Or the school district might investigate if the state or county would improve the pedestrian walk along Highway 1.

The directors asked Albert to prepare a report to determine the extent of need at the high school for some kind of relief. Albert will present the report at the directors' next meeting, Dec. 10.

OBITUARIES

DOUGLAS KEENEY

Retired Air Force Brig. Gen Douglas Keeney, who began his military career 45 years ago at the Presidio of Monterey when it was only a cavalry post, died Friday, Nov. 2, at his Carmel Valley Manor home after a period of diminishing health.

A native of Erie, Mich., Mr. Keeney joined the U.S. Army in about 1911. He was sent to the Mexican border with a cavalry troop to battle Pancho Villa. But when the Army learned that Mr. Keeney was below the minimum age to serve in the forces, he was sent back to Michigan and to school.

In 1917, Mr. Keeney once again joined the cavalry at Fort Sheridan, Ill. Later, he transferred to the Army Corps of Engineers, the Signal Corps, which later became the Air Force.

Mr. Keeney served during World War I, World War II, the Korean War and during peace time.

Mr. Keeney is survived by his widow, Marth; a son, Douglas Keeney of Lafayette; a daughter, Virginia Keeney Smith of Whidbey Island, Wash.; a brother, Wallace Keeney of Erie; a sister, Lois Keeney of Michigan.

The family suggests that memorial contributions be in the form of donations to the Monterey County Symphony Guild, Sunset Cultural Center, San Carlos Street and Ninth Avenue, Carmel 93921.

VALLEY CHAMBER READIES PLANS FOR ANNUAL GOOD EGG AWARDS

The Carmel Valley Chamber of Commerce is making plans for its annual Good Egg awards ceremony to be held at the January meeting of the organization.

The awards go to residents of Carmel Valley for outstanding community service.

Lou Gardner was appointed chairman of the committee which will make the selections of the Good Eggs to be honored at the annual chamber dinner.

CARMELO 4-H HAS A FIELD DAY

Carmelo 4-H took a field trip to four places on Saturday. The first stop was at the Fat City Cattle Co. in Gonzales where they toured through the feedlots and saw the company's branding facilities. Their guide showed the 4-H'ers the branding and marking system—putting a steer into a hydraulic press, then lightly squeezing him to keep him still. Then the steer is branded, wormed, vaccinated and, in some cases, dehorned.

Next, Carmelo 4-H visited the Fat City feed plant. This is where they make the 100 percent protein feed that is kept in front of the cattle 18 hours a day. A truck is driven under a hopper, and a button is pushed to release the feed needed.

Meadowgold Dairy was the 4-H'ers third stop, where they were shown their system of milking many cows in a day.

Bountiful Vintage '79 harvest promised

By ROBERT LAWRENCE BALZER

VINTAGE 1979 BEGAN officially in Reims, France, in the antique province of Champagne on Wednesday, Oct. 3. It will be a bountiful harvest, both in quantity and quality.

A disastrous freeze at the time of the flowering in 1978 cut the quantity so drastically, all the Champagne houses faced dipping into their precious reserves to maintain their normal markets.

The French Revolution is not forgotten in this agricultural province; the farmers, some 17,000 grape-growers, control 85 percent of the production. They play an equally dominant role in the economic factors governing Champagne production. The famous names of the great houses might seem to be the reigning lords of the region, as once it was the Church. But today it is the Comité Interprofessionnel du Vin de Champagne (CIVC), which not only set the date of the harvest, governs the price of grapes but as well allocates to 150 firms their continuity of grapes from the 62,500 acres in production.

Only three varieties are permitted for cultivation: Chardonnay, the one white grape, Pinot Noir and Pinot Meunier, the latter of less importance in the finer cuvees, or blends of current taste-vogue. All the plantations in the Vallee de la Marne, the Montagne de Reims and the Cote des Blancs below Epernay were evaluated long ago for the quality of their potential production, soil, exposure, plantation and so on, on a par basis of 100. Growers are paid on the numerical evaluation of the par scale for their grapes.

NATURALLY, THE HOUSES of grande marque all want a big share of the 80 - 90 percent rated Chardonnay and Pinot Noir. Only a few houses, like Taittinger and Roederer, own significant acreage of their own. The rest must rely upon rulings of the CIVC which allocates on the basis of the age of the firm, sales of the previous year and current need.

By regulation, all Champagne must be aged at least one year, but few, even the cheapest brands, will work with three-years on the yeasts before disgorging and marketing; the houses of grande marque, or brand, often being six or seven years on the yeasts before release.

That means enormous inventories, in millions and millions of bottles, a not inconsiderable cost factor. It also means proper cellarage, the space to keep all those bottles, upside down, on their points, before ultimate disgorging, recorking, and labeling.

GREAT BRITAIN USED to be the number-one export customer (France itself is the greatest customer of Champagne) but that position has been taken over by Belgium, with Italy and the United States now ranking in that order.

The history of wine-making in this northern region traces to Roman days. Vineyards flourished to such an extent in 92 A.D. that the Emperor Domitian ordered the destruction of all the vines in Gaul, and especially Champagne, for fear that the peasants would forget about growing wheat, that his soldiers would drink too much wine and forget about protecting the frontiers of the Empire.

Two centuries later, the Emperor Probus rescinded that edict, and a great splurge of a re-planting ensued; the triumphal arch of the Porte Mars was erected to commemorate the good news.

There are 127,000 acres gross in the appellation of this old province, but not all are of good vineyard possibility. When the Champagne houses attempted to go beyond the borders of the province to bring in grapes to bolster the quantities of their high demand product, the peasant grape-growers staged riots, overturned the arriving wagons of grapes; vineyards, already straw-wrapped against the winter, caught fire, and burned.

Then came 1914 and World War I. The Valley of the Marne, Verdun, Soissons, Chateau Thierry were names that flamed around the world with the German conflict. Trenches were dug through vineyard lands. Fallen soldiers of France, England and the United States were buried here; cemeteries took up hundreds of acres which would never again return to the vine.

ALL OF THIS IS background to the intensive emotional fervor felt by all Champenoise when the name of their province is given to wines not produced within its borders. To the Champenoise, there is no such thing as California Champagne, New York Champagne. No common market country can deal with France with a sparkling wine by that name. The Italian sparklers are called spumante, the German, sekt.

There is good reason for this strong feeling and pride. The soil of Champagne is unique in the world. In prehistoric eras, the whole province was the bed of an immense inland sea, leaving a vast and deep base of chalk. The miles of underground cellars and chalk caverns, excavated by the Romans for building material, make today's ideal storage for aging wines.

The vineyard lands themselves, with chalk outcroppings visible everywhere, would be poor for anything else, soil only inches deep, but ideal for the vines. This imparts to the grapes, and the wines a crisp delicacy and clean taste unmatched in any other vineyards of the worlds.

THERE ARE ONLY A few of the great Champagne houses remaining in private, family ownership, Taittinger, Roederer, Pol Roger, Bollinger, Krug (now shared ownership with Remy Martin). The oldest house, Ruinart Pere et Fils, now belongs to the Moët-Hennessy empire.

Dom Perignon remains a high-demand Champagne, but it is not the one and only great Champagne. Dom Perignon, the Benedictine abbot who developed the methode champenoise still used, was not the only pre-Revolutionary winemaker refining the bottling of sparkling wines in this old province. Dom Thierry Ruinart was a contemporary, as was Frere Jean Oudart, who planted a patchwork of Chardonnay and Pinot Noir vines on the slopes of the village of Pierry, now called "Chateau de la Marquetterie."

When the vine leaves turn their different colors in the autumn, it seems indeed, a marquetary pattern. These are the vines of Taittinger, the Pinot Noir being used for the silky, soft, elegant Taittinger Pink Champagne. Roederer has one, too, and so does Ruinart, seeming to herald an oncoming new importance, in Champagne circles, to Champagne Rose.

Vintage 1979 will be a good year for Champagne. The wine will never be inexpensive, but then, what luxury is?

Friday and Saturday only

'Anything Goes' on stage in Carmel

Cole Porter's Anything Goes, a rollicking musical comedy about the antics of lovesick mobsters and beautiful chorus girls on an ocean cruise, will be staged for two performances only by the Jamesburg Players Friday and Saturday, Nov. 9-10 at the Sunset Center, Carmel.

The Jamesburg Players, a group of Upper Carmel Valley and Jamesburg area residents; will perform each evening at 8 p.m. The production is a repeat of the September show staged at the Hidden Valley Theatre, Carmel Valley to benefit the Jamesburg Elementary School.

Originally a Broadway hit in 1934, written by Guy Bolton, P. G. Wodehouse, Howard Lindsay and Russel Crouse, Anything Goes includes many of Porter's most memorable songs. Now a chorus line of Carmel Valley beauties will perform Porter's ribald and sentimental songs including I Get a Kick Out of You; Anything Goes; Blow, Gabriel, Blow; and You're the Top.

When the show was revived and revamped in 1962 for contemporary New York audiences, additional Porter songs were added, including It's Delovely.

Review critic Mark Rivette said of the first production of Anything Goes: "If you are open for an evening of unrestrained fun, run, do not walk to this musical."

The local production was produced, directed and choreographed by Linda and John Prejean, original members of the White Oaks Theater which is now home of the Hidden Valley Music Seminars.

Characters and cast members are Linda Prejean as Reno Sweeney, ex-evangelist turned nightclub singer who is accompanied by her bevy of not-so-angelic tap-dancing angels; John Prejean as Moonface Martin, a fugitive who boards the ocean liner and assumes the role of Rev. Dr. Moon; and Mary Silliman as the lovely Hope Harcourt who becomes embroiled in a triangle between her foppish fiancé, Sir Evelyn, played by Michael Halton, and Bill Crocker, a "broken down broker" played by John Macy.

Tickets, at $6 general and $5 for children and seniors, are available at the Carmel Valley General Store, Carmel Valley Village; Bartlett Music, Carmel; the Monterey Box office in Sun Stereo, Del Monte Center, Monterey; or at the door on the night of the show.

For further information, phone 659-4462 or 373-0746, ext. 757.
